THOSE INTERESTED IN

TOWN LOTS

Being on the Estate of the late Geo. McKay.

And lying north of McLean street, are requested to meet me at the office of McLean & Elliot, on Saturday, the 3rd inst., at 7 p.m.

For the purpose of taking action to procure the Patent for the same.

THOMAS MCKAY

Why Don't the Girls Propose.

Why don't the girls propose, papa?
Why don't the girls propose?
Each one seems content to the point,
And then away she goes.

Though 'tis their privilege this year,
As everybody knows,
They flirt in quite an unusual way.

But, oh, they won't propose.

I've read the latest fashions,
I can talk of plate and foil,
And discuss the latest colour.

With a quite consummate skill;
I am an expert on bonnets.

Know a thing or two about love,
And I seem to interest them.

But they won't—they won't propose.

That most beautiful of Muses
In the excellent fashions,
About making dresses, are

I have studied with attention,
Till one really would suppose
That my language must attract them.

Yet still they won't propose.

I've practiced charming innocence,
And weeping at the play;

In a most engaging way;
I've studied hard to blush and lip

My "yes" and my "no,"
And smiled with sweet persistence;

But they will not propose.

It's really very hard, papa.

There's come for just complaint,
I'm even trying to teach myself

The way to scream and faint;
But while I practice every art,

Too fast the leap year goes,
Why don't the girls propose, papa?

Why don't the girls propose?

It is now rumored that the English and the American Governments are to unite in common cause and concerted action against dynamite conspiracies and assassins. This is as it should be. Governments should ever freely unite in stamping out any movement tending to unnecessary disturbance of peace and safety and malicious destruction of life and property. It has been very discreditable to the American authorities that for years and years a class of base and brutal men have been allowed to go on with impunity in their open bands of organizations expressly designed to destroy the public property and endanger the lives of the people of a friendly country, as well as to collect large sums of money for that express purpose. In few other friendly countries would anything so dangerous and so disgraceful have been so long permitted.

Mr. Baker, of Knox & Baker, contractor, left for Battleford last Tuesday.

Those interested in town lots being on the estate of the late Geo. McKay, and lying north of McLean st., are requested to meet Mr. T. O. Davis at the office of McLean & Elliot on Saturday, the 3rd inst., at 7 p.m., for the purpose of taking action to procure the patent for the same.

Send to this office every little scrap of news which comes under your observation. We accept almost everything. It does not matter a particle how it is written, or how poor a penman the author may be. Put the particulars of the item in any form, put it in an envelope, or bring it yourself, and we will certainly find a place for it. We speak to you, reader, man, woman or youth. Don't forget it. A few persons engaged in this way could make a newspaper readable and interesting.

A meeting was held last Tuesday evening in the Mission school house for the purpose of considering the payment of dues on cardboard. Mr. J. F. Betts was called to the chair and opened the meeting, after which several of those present vented their pleasant opinions on the subject. A resolution was unanimously passed that a petition be drafted and forwarded to the Minister of the Interior, asking that twenty cords of wood and the first set of home legs be allowed each settler free; over that due to be charged. A committee of five was appointed to draft a petition, and also to wait on Mr. Waggoner, Crown Timber Agent, asking him to pay the collection of dues till the Minister had been heard from, which that gentleman has kindly consented to do.

powerful dynamite cartridges with fine

dian Land's Office at the parliament buildings, they were found by a son of the caretaker yesterday afternoon. A thorough search revealed two more approaching the speakers chamber, these also having fine and fine attached; the dynamite must have been placed in position last night before discovery. There is great excitement around the parliament buildings. The cartridges are six inch-are labeled "Acme Powder Co., Chicago."

Two cells appear to have been recently

PROHIBITION.

Amongst other matters in which the public take considerable interest but which seem to glide gracefully from view—is the petition to be allowed a brewery in this place. The result of questions which affect the public ought surely to be made known whatever the result of the decision arrived at, but whatever else may be charged to the government of the territories, it cannot be accused of any extravagance in the matter of courtesy. Now with regard to the manufacture of beer in the territories, it is not our intention in the present article to enter into any argument with total abstinents. That question has been considered over and over again in every possible aspect, and the result has been invariably the same, viz., that at the end of all and every argument neither party has convinced the other. What we do hold very distinctly is, that it would be far better to be allowed the manufacture of beer, than to let things go on as they are doing now under the present system. Whatever may be said of the theory upon which our present liquor law was framed, nothing can be said in support of its operation, and we may notice as one out of many proofs of this statement, the necessity of establishing total abstinence societies. If enough of liquor enters the territories to render such societies even advisable, it is utterly absurd that the law should compel the consumers to incur the unnecessary waste of sending such a distance to procure it, and force them from an economical point of view to compress the strongest and most pernicious sorts of liquor into the smallest compass. Were this all it would be bad enough, but unfortunately there are other yet more serious evils resulting from the present system. It is on the face of it grossly unjust that the liquor supply of the free inhabitants of so vast a district as the territories should depend upon the judgment, caprice, or favoritism of any one individual—he that individual the Territorial Governor or any other man. Were there no other objection to this state of things, it must be most objectionable to put such a vast influence into the hands of an individual, and no one who has ever noticed the prominence of liquor in all disputes with regard to the equity of any question which has been decided by popular vote, can pretend to consider this objection a sentimental one. But worse than all this, is the disastrous effect upon the moral sentiment of communities, when laws are nominally in force, but practically disregarded, and that such is the case with regard to the prohibitory liquor law in the territories, is far too notorious to require any demonstration. When any law framed in the interests of the people, has nothing inherently and radically objectionable about it, it forthwith commands public sympathy and can in a general way be easily enforced. When it fails to obtain this sympathy, an enormous executive force becomes necessary to compel respect, and under such circumstances the sooner it is either altered or abolished the better. The reason why otherwise law abiding citizens regard with perfect equanimity the infringement of the liquor law, are not far to seek. Some of them are continued indirectly in what we have already said about the inability to obtain at a reasonable price a comparatively harmless beverage, as well as the supply depending upon caprice or favoritism. The others may be readily discovered in the abominably exaggerated severity of the penalties inflicted for certain offences against it, and the failure to discriminate between the nature of different offences. It is utterly unreasonable that a man who may have brought a little liquor into the territories for medicinal purposes without a permit which perhaps he had not time to apply for, or had been refused—should be liable to the same amount of fine or imprisonment as one who deliberately smuggles in a large quantity to sell. We are aware that a magistrate has considerable discretionary power with regard to the amount of penalty he may impose, but the lowest he can inflict is far too high for such a case as we have instanced, and unfortunately magistrates have been found capable of boasting that they make a rule in every case of punishing as severely as the law allows. Until this state of things be altered, as well as many others, which from the changed condition of the territories, have become complete anachronisms, the public will smile at the evasion of the law.

THE BISHOP IN ENGLAND.

A public meeting in aid of the Bishop of Saskatchewan's fund was held at the Mansion House yesterday. The Lord Mayor occupied the chair during the first part of the meeting, and it was subsequently filled by the Bishop of Belford and Bishop Cudwell successively. The meeting having been opened by Bishop Cudwell, the Lord Mayor said the affliction which had fallen upon the nation was a particular loss to this meeting inasmuch as the great feature of the meeting was to have been that the Marquis of Lorne was to attend and deliver an address, but of course he was prevented from attending by the death of his brother-in-law, the Duke of Albany. A letter was then read from the Marquis of Lorne to the Bishop of Saskatchewan, in the course of which he said: "I deeply regret my inability to appear to advocate your claims in person, for I had long looked forward to giving you a helping hand on this occasion to further the excellent work on which you are engaged. You will remember that I was privileged to see the beginning of it in 1881, when you received our party at Prince Albert. I am convinced that the proper laying of the foundations of Church ministrations and of education in the vast districts in which ecclesiastical charge will benefit hundreds of thousands who will settle in those fertile regions, I rejoice that the Lord Mayor has given you so good an opportunity to place the pressing and most legitimate claims you have on the generosity of the mother country before the public of London and of England generally. I tell the ladies pressing, because emigration is now fast directed towards Saskatchewan and Alberta, and we may be certain that the great movement of population which is one of the most remarkable of our time will continue, and will rapidly fill the wheat and grazing lands of the North. I call your claims legitimate, because it is largely from the British Isles that the settlers have gone, and it is the duty of the English Church to see that it is not distanced in the effort to provide relief and instruction by other religious bodies. The Society for the Propagation of the Gospel and the Church Missionary Society are sure to lack you, but both for your missionary enterprises and for the great scheme of a good college you must have funds provided by the public at large. As most of the country, extending over 1,000 miles in length, by 350 to 500 in width, is good for settlement, very much depends on the proper initiation of the work. This cannot be done without money, for the equipment of the clergy in their long wanderings through regions as yet unprovided with railroads, as well as for the erection of temporary churches at suitable points, and then, enlargement of buildings adequate for the purposes of a college at head-quarters."

The Bishop of Saskatchewan said he had known Manitoba for more than 20 years, and for the last ten years he had been Bishop of Saskatchewan. When he first went there the population was a very scanty one, and now it can be numbered by hundreds of thousands. It was a country remarkable for fertility, he believed one of the most fertile on the face of the earth; and it had another advantage in there being in it an enormous coal field. During the last 30 years no less than 5,000,000 millions of people had emigrated from this country, of whom 3,300,000 had gone to the United States. They would not have gone there had Manitoba and the North West been opened by railways as they were now. It was of vast importance to the British Empire that the tide of emigration should be turned in this direction. His diocese covered an area of about 1,000 miles from east to west, and from 350 to 500 miles from north to south, and settlements of English residents were rapidly forming. There were over 25,000 Indians in the diocese, and there was a good work being done among them. A college had been established, and he had already sent from it eight well-trained men, three of them in orders, and he felt assured that he would be able to send forth a large number of Indian missionaries who could preach the gospel to the Indians in their mother tongue. The institution was also intended to be used as a high school for the sons of the settlers. The sum required for an additional endowment had been made up, but the College and Episcopal required help, the expenses of visitation being necessarily very great, tents and all the appliances of living having to be taken with him in waggon.

The Bishop of Belford said the help that was asked for was only temporary, as there was no doubt that as the country became peopled they would support the Church themselves. He heartily supported the movement, first for the sake of the Church at large, secondly because of its missionary character, and thirdly because being interested in emigration from East London, he believed that in the country in which the diocese of Saskatchewan was situated there was a splendid opening for those who might go from us to seek fortune elsewhere.

The meeting closed with a vote of thanks to the Lord Mayor for allowing the use of the room. The Daily News, London, Eng., April 1, 1884.

KITCHEN ECONOMY.

Interesting Tests Made by the Government Chemist.

Dr. Edwards of Lave, the Analytical Chemist for the U. S. Government, has made some interesting experiments as to the comparative value of baking powders. Dr. Lave's tests were made to determine what brands are the most economical to use, and as their capacity lies in their leavening power, tests were directed solely to ascertain the available gas of each powder. Dr. Lave's report gives the following:

Name of the	Strength:
"Royal" (absolutely pure)	17
"Palatine" (alum powder)	125.2
"Rumford's" (phosphate fresh)	122.5
"Rumford's" (phosphate old)	32.7
"Hansford's None Such" (fresh)	121.6
"Hansford's None Such" (old)	84.35
"Redhead's"	117.0
"Charm" (alum powder)	116.8
"Amazon" (alum powder)	111.97
"Cleveland's" (short weight box)	110.8
"Sea Foam"	107.9
"Van"	106.8
"Dr. Price's"	102.6
"Snow Flake" (Graf's St. Paul)	101.88
"Lewis" (Condensed)	98.2
"Congress" (yeast)	97.5
"C. E. Andrew & Co's"	78.12
"Hecker's"	92.5
"Gillespie"	84.2
"Bak"	80.5

In his report, the Government Chemist says:

"I regard all alum powders as very unwholesome. Phosphate and Tartaric Acid powders liberate their gas too slowly in the process of baking, or under varying climatic changes suffer deterioration."

Dr. H. A. Mott, the former Government Chemist, after a careful and elaborate examination of the various Baking Powders of commerce, reported to the Government in favor of the Royal Brand.

THE DUDE.

How They Came to Let a Dude Stay in Texas.
"Talk about yer doods," said a Texas stockman on the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy train last night, "a little the doodsdest dood I ever seen was a feller that come down from Boston into our kentry a year ago las' September."
"He didn't stay in Texas long, I guess, said a little man in a silk hat.
"Yaas, he's there now."
"I thought they wouldn't let a dude live in Texas?"
"Waal, I'll tell yer how it wuz we come ter let him stay. He come down there with his peaked boots an' his tight trousers an' yeller kid gloves, a slinger more style than a new Congressman on the Fourth o' July, an' a tellin' folks that his doctor said he'd the consumption an' 'd have to live in a warm climate."
"Ah, yes, of course, you pitted the poor fellow and let him stay on that account."

"Not exactly that, but, as I was a sayin', he slung his style like a Mormon walkin' by a United States marshal's office. Wall, one night he came into a saloon where a lot of us was a drinkin', an' steps up to the bar an' says, 'Aw, I say, jah trouble, give me a little of w'as w'm lemmade.' Bill Jackson snorted right out, an' then says 'e, 'Boys, what d'ye say? Let me make the dood drink gin.' It was a go, so Bill walks up an' claps the dood on the back like he'd break 'im in two. Bill's the best man on the muscle in our hull kentry. 'Say,' says Bill, 'you'd better lemmade I desah,' says the dood. 'Wall,' says Bill, 'w'as lemmade don't 'win these 'ere parts, you drinks gin or drinks uthin' 'you hear me?' 'It w'as seems to me you're mistaken,' says the dood, without seemin' to see there was trouble ahead; 'I want to aw drink w'm lemmade, an' he reached out for the glass. Bill winked at the rest of us and says to the dood: 'D'ye know what a gin' to do if you tries to drink anythin' but gin?' Wealy I do not miah deah boy. 'Wall,' says Bill, 'I'm a gin' to stand you on your head in that air box of sawdust.' 'Aw that would not be wight,' says the dood, a tipping up his glass to drink. Bill reached up an' grabbed 'im by the neck, an' I never saw a man get licked so quick."

"Bill was too much for him, was he?"
"No, no, it wuz 'utther way. It wuz Bill thet got licked. Jerusalem and cin'ral Jackson, but how that dood did jump about! 'An' every time he jumped 'e fetched Bill one on the eye or under the ear or along the jaw, an' Bill couldn't get within gunshot ur 'im. Why, thet air dood he made more tricks for fightin' 'than Bill ever dreamt up. First he'd be behind Bill an' then on top of him an' then under him, an' every time Bill opened as eye the dood stuck a fist in it, eryr tme, it didn't make no difference to him. He wuz just about as handy with his thumpers as any man needs to be in this world. It didn't take him more'n a minute to go all around Bill an' over 'im an' through 'im in the bargain; an' then when he had Bill pretty well licked he took him the all first crack on the nose an' sent 'im over in the corner behind the ice box like a bundle o' old shoes."
What did he do then?"

"Why, he jest turned aroun' an' brushed the sawdust off his knee where he ducked down to come up under Bill, an' says he, 'Gentlemen, will you join me aw in a w'm lemmade? An' we jined 'im, too, quick."
"Yes, he's there yet; an' I guess he kin stay unless the consumption gets away with 'im. There hasn't nothing else done there that kin do it, that's sure."
